Our dream jobs

Last month we asked, 'What do you want to be when you grow up?' Here are some of your answers.

I have wanted to be an astronaut since I was a little kid. When I was five, Grandpa let me use his telescope for the first time — the stars looked so close! Since then, Grandpa has taken me to the Space Museum many times. On our last visit, we watched an amazing 3D film about space travel. That night, I had the most wonderful dream ever —

I was an astronaut travelling through space!

If I become an astronaut, I will have a very exciting and adventurous life. I will see amazing things in space. I may even meet aliens on other planets!

Some people think girls can't be astronauts, but I won't let anything stop me from following my dream! I am going to join a space camp in the summer holidays and do some astronaut training!

My dream is to be a fashion blogger. I love watching video blogs about fashion. Some of my favourite video blogs are about upcycling clothes — making a stylish new top out of an old shirt, for example. Upcycling is good for the environment and it is a great way to save money too. If I become a fashion blogger, I will share my own ideas for upcycling clothes.

If you like football, you will know about Neymar. He is one of the best footballers in the world and he comes from Brazil, the same as me!

When I grow up, I want to be a famous footballer because I love football. I spend every waking hour kicking a ball with my friends or watching football on TV! I have played for my school for three years and last year our team won the Junior Cup. I hope one day I can play for the national team and win the World Cup.

What do the children need to do to achieve their dreams? Can you give them some advice?
